MENTAL HEALTH

Integration of early childhood mental health consultation is an expanding trend with many home visiting programs. The Missouri Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Home Visiting (MIECHV) Program recently added a mental health consultation component into home visiting programs in which the Nurse Family Partnership and Parents as Teachers models are being implemented. Mental health consultation can take on many different forms. Mental Health Consultants can: help clients/families with individual or family issues; work with home visitors to assist their work with families experiencing mental health issues; and provide professional development to home visitors. The mental health consultant plays a key role in supporting home visitors in addressing complex family situations.

ACTION ALERT: Discuss mental health resources in your area. Follow-up on clients/families referred for mental health services. Was the referral completed? Does the family need additional services from other community agencies?

ACTION ALERT: Survey home visiting staff to determine specific mental health topic areas they would like to receive additional training/professional development in to assure they feel confident in assessing for and making mental health referrals. Discuss how MIECHV could provide ongoing support for home visitors as they serve families with mental health issues.

SUCCESS STORIES...REASONS TO CELEBRATE!

Building Blocks/Nurse Family Partnership Southeast

- A client was enrolled in the program by the third nurse to contact her. The first two nurses had issues meeting with her due to her homelessness and she finally connected with the third nurse. During pregnancy the client mended the relationship with her mother who has five other children younger than the client. Ultrasounds during pregnancy showed that baby’s kidneys were not developing and that there was no stomach and the client was advised to abort the pregnancy. The client continued her pregnancy and delivered a preterm infant who was on dialysis during his first couple of weeks. The client remained in the St. Louis hospital and pumped breast milk still being told that the baby may not survive. Through all this stress and change in her life, the client has returned home to a place of her own, and the child is now 21 months old with no current medications or delays and she continues to breastfeed!

South Central Missouri Community Action Agency

- While enrolled, a mom completed her bachelors degree, began her masters degree, and found full-time employment. The family is now financially independent.

- A family was told by their doctor that their child was significantly delayed. The family contacted our program and was enrolled. The family was also referred to Missouri First Steps. Missouri First Steps did an evaluation the day before the family was enrolled into our program. At that time the 12-month-old child could not crawl. Within three months, the child can not only crawl, but is walking as well.
